By EDGAR PEREZ
Amassing a three-to-one margin in Ward Three, incumbent Larry Bennett overcame losses in Bay St. Louis' First, Second and Fourth Wards to edge challenger Vic Frankiewicz by 29 votes in the Democratic primary mayoral election Tuesday.
Bennett will face Republican Joe Buccola, a Hancock County realtor, in a June 2 general election.
Bennett polled 346 votes to 100 for Frankiewicz in Ward Three.
City Clerk Eddie Favre said returns certified by the Democratic Municipal Executive Committee Wednesday morning show Frankiewicz bested Bennett 367 to 258 in Ward One.
The challenger captured 339 votes in Ward Two to 325 for the incumbent.
Ward Four voters gave Frankiewicz 383 votes to 289 for Bennett.

general election.
Also elected through nomination is Gary Taylor who bested Ronnie Ardugas for the Ward One councilman's post, 340 to 285.
There are no Republican nor Independent candidates for that slot either.
Incumbent Jim Thriffley handily defeated his two opponents with a clear majority of the Ward Two votes for councilman in that district.
Thriffley polled 349 votes to 157 for Clarence Ladner and 155 for Clyde Ladner.
Thriffley also is unopposed in the general election and automatically returns to the council through Democratic nomination.

Ward Three incumbent councilman Harry Farve narrowly edged challenger Charles Johnson, 241 to 201 in that district's councilmanic race.

Farve will face Independents Herta Smith and Thomas P. Clark in the June 2 general election.

That race and the Bennett-Buccola contest are the only positions to be under contention in the general election.

In the only contest resulting in a runoff, Sheldon Seuzeneau led a five-man field for the Ward Four councilman's post with 258 votes.

Facing Seuzeneau in a May 19 runoff for the Democratic nomination will be John Wilkerson who polled 144 votes in Tuesday's primary.

Trailing in that race were Mike Mercier, 115 votes; Charles Hirstius, 88; and Truman Schultz, 62.

With no Republican or Independent candidates seeking that post formerly held by Republican Fred Wagner who also did not seek re-election, the runoff winner will get the job.

McCullough recommendations rejected

Bay school board hikes employee pay

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Pay increases for all Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District employees were authorized by the Board of Trustees Monday night.
The board reduced virtually all wage, salary and supplement hikes recommended by J.D. McCullough, superintendent of education, after meeting in executive session for some two hours.

While in executive session, where the public and news media are barred, the board called administrators in twice during the lengthy closed discussion apparently to discuss salaries.

At a meeting last week the board approved an average 8.3 percent pay increase for all certified teachers.

McCullough recommended a similar raise for administrators with 'responsibility,' years of service and certification rating as basis for additional increases.

But the board authorized a five percent across-the-board annual pay hike for the district's administrators which increases:

—McCullough's salary from $31,488 to $33,062;

—Assistant Superintendent Donald Caldwell's salary from $27,986 to $29,385;

—Athletic Director Wilmer Seymour's salary from $21,306 to $22,371;

—Bay Senior High School Principal Robert Magee's salary from $25,847 to $27,139;

—Senior High Assistant Principal Frank Ladner's salary from $23,281 to $24,445;

—Bay Junior High School Principal

W.J. Cameron's salary from $23,487 to $24,661;

—Junior High Assistant Principal

Full Gospel members picket to save church

By BRENT MACEY
On Lakeshore Drive in Hancock County, several people are walking a stretch of road with picket signs outside a small church called the Jesus is the Answer, Full Gospel Church.
Reverend Doctor Pat L. Bordelon, pastor at the church, and the seven or eight picketers, say they are picketing to keep the church from being taken away.

A small table has been set up along the road side displaying pictures showing the inside of the church as it

Area may reveal rich archaeological history

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Positive responses to a recent survey indicate the Bay St. Louis and Pass Christian area is rich in archaeological history.
A University of Illinois archaeological survey team will begin working in this area in two weeks.
The team of two or three students and professors will be led by R. Barry Lewis, a former Waveland resident and assistant anthropology professor at the Urbana-Champaign based university.
Lewis recently mailed an archaeological survey questionnaire to several hundred local residents.
The survey is being funded by the university as a seed grant to promote a major archaeological study of the Bay of St. Louis area, subsidized by the National Science Foundation. No major archaeological studies have yet been conducted here.

Regarding response to the questionnaires, Lewis Monday in Urbana reported, "We did not expect so many positive responses. Response has been very high."

"Usually the positive responses to such questionnaires amount to about one percent, but we received 10 to 15 percent of these. We didn't expect so many positive responses," Lewis stated.

The survey leader reported some responses were not pertinent to the study as expected, but also some interesting patterns in archaeological finds by residents were revealed.

"For instance, people frequently stated they found arrowheads in the Cedar Point area of Bay St. Louis," he said.

Farmers Market opens Saturday

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Hancock County Farmers Market will officially open Saturday, according to John Smith, county agent.

The market, located at the Fairgrounds, Longfellow Road, opens 7 a.m. until noon. In addition, it will be open also on Wednesdays for the summer.

Smith reports local farmers should have a good supply of squash, snap beans, cucumbers, potatoes, honey collards, mustard and turnip greens, and potted plants, among other items.

This will be the fourth year of the market which is held in conjunction of the County Extension (County Agent).

Farm Bureau and Chamber of Commerce.

Smith says, "In a few weeks the market will be in full bloom with peas, corn, watermelons and a good selection is expected for this weekend. I have talked to several farmers and they tell me they will have fresh produce ready by Saturday."

"This is a fine program for both the farmers and city folks because it enables the farmer to offer the freshest produce available," Smith noted.

The County Agent continued, "Farmers can grow just about anything in the soils of Hancock County."

into the coming century. The 1980's for the United States space programs may be a decade synonymous with the 50's, the pre-Sputnik times, when NASA was politically on the back burner for a while before firing up.

"NASA and the space program are dead for the time being," said futurist Brian O'Leary speaking to the USM University Forum audience Tuesday night. "Unfortunately, the space shuttle and the Voyager missions were not the beginning of the new space era, but the tail end of the 1970's space interest." O'Leary feels the worth of space exploration is the fortune in natural resources such as carbon, platinum and nickel, that are floating weightlessly in bodies of gigantic asteroids.

"Asteroids may occupy an area three times as large as a football field and be composed of tons of valuable resources," the astro-physicist said. The huge bodies could be profitably retrieved from their orbits, he feels, in order to be utilized.

Planets and asteroids in space can not only offer metals and elements but space can provide "space" for growing crops. O'Leary said the Russians have already proven wheat can be grown in space, harvested, and be fit for baking bread.

"Even pigs can be raised in space, if you can imagine it," O'Leary is special consultant to the U.S. House Subcommittee for Energy and the Environment.

Hurricanes serve a useful purpose

It might be hard to convince people along the Gulf Coast of this, but, fact is, hurricanes serve a useful function in the summer atmosphere.

In a recent seminar at the Laboratory, Cal Sisto, meteorologist on WLAX-TV in Biloxi, noted the benefits of hurricanes while explaining the extremely destructive forces of the storms.

Citing the immense amounts of energy transferred by a hurricane, Sisto said a hurricane in one day releases enough energy (if it could all be harnessed) to supply the United States with electrical power for 6 months. "That's the kind of monster we are talking about," stated Sisto. "Concerning hurricanes' beneficial effects, Sisto pointed out that the tropics have a surplus of energy at all times, and the heat is removed by motions in the atmosphere and oceans. In the winter, cold fronts move toward the equator and cool off the tropics.

"In the summer, when cold air masses do not penetrate the tropics, another mechanism is needed to get the excess energy out of the tropics and move it to higher latitudes to maintain the earth's overall energy heat balance," Sisto said.

Tropical cyclones serve as that mechanism. The name pertains to all mature storms around the world. There are, however, some differences in names from area to area, he stated.

In the Gulf, Caribbean, and eastern North Pacific and Atlantic, the storms are called hurricanes, from colonial Spanish and Caribbean Indian words meaning big winds and evil spirits. In the Indian Ocean they are known as "cyclones" and in Australia as "willy willies," and in the central and western North Pacific as "typhoons."

In a typical season in the Atlantic (including the Gulf of Mexico) there is an average of eight tropical cyclones, five obtaining hurricane strength.

In 1980 in the Atlantic there were 11 major storms; nine were classified as hurricanes.

The systems worldwide are called tropical storms when wind circulation reaches 39 mph; when it reaches 74 mph (or 65 knots) they are called hurricanes or other names applied to mature storms.

Sisto said that the official hurricane season in the Atlantic is from June through November, with a peak in storm activity in September.

Hurricanes that affect the Gulf of Mexico usually are spawned in the North Atlantic over warm water at a temperature of at least 27 degrees C or 81 degrees F.

They may originate with thunderstorm activity over Africa, possibly even aided by dust from the Sahara Desert, he continued. The thunderstorm activity moves westward over open water and, with the aid of favorable atmospheric conditions and the earth's rotation, may form a closed circulation.

The area of storm formation changes as the season progresses, said Sisto. The mature cyclone or hurricane stage of the storm is reached most often in the western Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico during June and again beginning in late September.

Responding to questions from the audience, Sisto said that during the next 50 years it probably will be possible to lessen the effects of hurricanes. He hopes in the next decade the United States will continue experiments with "seeding" hurricanes, as with Project Stormfury, which is presently being reevaluated.

"Suppressing storms entirely would be impossible," he said, "that would require atomic energy; we would do more harm than good."

Commenting on the part that pollutants play in the formation of hurricanes, Sisto said they contribute to raising the level of condensation nuclei in the atmosphere.

Sisto said that the eruption of Mount St. Helens last May should not have any influence on the coming hurricane season. Any material it put into the lower layers of the atmosphere has settled out now; but, another eruption could insert material into the lower atmosphere.

There is no evidence that numbers and strength of hurricanes are increasing, but since the mid-1960's, the monitoring of weather over the ocean has improved.

Gasoline prices increase 'slightly'

Gasoline prices in Louisiana and Mississippi increased only slightly during the last four weeks, according to information gathered for the American Automobile Association's April Fuel Gauge Survey.

Since the March survey, the average price of gas in Louisiana increased only nine-tenths of a cent to $1.39 per gallon. Mississippi's average of $1.487 per gallon reflects an increase of 13 cents per gallon.

The highest average gasoline price in the nation was in Mississippi, while the lowest ($1.348) was reported from Ohio. Louisiana ranked 19th from the lowest.

Since December 1980, the average cost of gasoline has increased by 16.7 cents per gallon in Louisiana and 15.5 cents per gallon in Mississippi.

Fuel remains generally available throughout the two-state area and the survey indicates that supplies will remain good for at least the next month.

"The price averages in this most recent survey," explains Joe Puglia, public affairs director for AAA's Central Gulf Division, "shows the price surge of the first two months of the year has been replaced by a period of price stability. For the most part, the effects of deregulation and the most recent OPEC price increases have already been experienced and only slight increases are predicted for the next few months. Record gasoline inventories currently being held by several major oil companies is another factor toward price stabilization and keeping gasoline prices competitively priced."

Thanks

Thanks, Bay St. Louis, for such a strong showing at the polls. I deeply appreciate the support of so many friends working to make a fundamental change in the way Bay St. Louis is run. We carried out an upright, issue-oriented campaign. It's disappointing that it wasn't enough, but it's gratifying that the campaign appealed to a broad cross-section of people, carrying three out of four wards.

To the voters of Ward 4, please remember to vote in the second primary on Tuesday, May 19. And to all the voters, the general election is Tuesday, June 2. Please get out and vote.

Thanks again.

Bits 'n pieces

It seems the young folks were up and ready early Saturday for the opening parade of the Bay St. Louis Little League.

On our way to work at 7:30 a.m. two boys were already waiting for the 9 a.m. parade.

It is good to have so many baseball programs in our county when you consider the Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Harrison-Hancock Leagues.

Many hundreds of young boys and girls are involved in the many teams and it gives our youth something to look forward to do and keeps them occupied.

The name of our newspaper has been misunderstood probably since it started in 1892.

The best we have come across was a letter addressed to us from Hattiesburg this week as 'Paceco Stacco' after the party was given The Sea Coast Echo over the telephone. The mailing address, city and zip code were correct.

We guess that the 'Paceco Stacco' will be around a long time before it is topped.

It will be the battle for the county championship tonight at the St. Stanislaus Stadium when the Tigers, Rocks, and Hawks tangle in the annual Spring Football Jamboree.

We know it sounds funny for football in the spring, but our local teams have been at practice for some time and are ready to finish up with the jamboree until fall.

It should be a good contest, with each team going against the other for the county championship.

We know the previous contests have been exciting and tonight's game should be the same.

It is good to have the Bay High Tigers, Hancock Hawks and Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws finish up their spring training with this game.

Kick-off is 6 p.m. at the Stanislaus Stadium. Hope to see you there.

While on the subject of sports, we would like to compliment Supervisor Sam Perniciaro on the fine ball facilities at the Beat Four Ball Park.

The two ball fields, concession stands and other facilities will get a lot of use for years to come.

We hope everyone using the facilities will respect them and use them for the purposes they have been built.

We wish everyone will take time to drive by the fine ball park on Highway 49 near Highway 603 to see how nice the place has been designed.

There are many folks who have worked on the facilities and they should also be commended. We know area businessmen have donated materials and some at special prices, all thinking about one thing, the youth of today.

It is good to think and plan for our youth, because they will be the leaders of tomorrow.

The world still has some honest people in circulation and we are happy to compliment Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Greer of Gulfport.

The couple was on their way to work on Tuesday morning when they found along I-10 a total of $25,000 which they turned in to authorities.

In all probability these people could have kept the money, but they did the honest thing and turned it in for the owners.

We hope Wells Fargo, the company who lost the money, will recognize this couple for being truly honest.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

You have written several times about advertising helping the consumer. Well, I don't think anything is helping me with our family budget. This is especially true for food. How about The Real Story?

Dear HATRS: You heard it right the first time. Advertising helps keep prices down.

First, it increases the volume of sales. This results in savings to you in decreased overhead per unit sold and in passed along discounts earned by the seller.

Secondly, it helps keep stores more competitive. This results in lower prices on many items.

These two results are particularly true for grocery stores.

A recent issue of The Wall Street Journal contained an article that relates somewhat to your query. It reported that a majority of supermarket shoppers—in order to save on food prices—are now studying newspaper ads to find the best bargains, stocking up on sale items, using money saving coupons, and making precise shopping lists to lessen the temptation of impulse buying.

The writer implied that most supermarkets advertise low profit staples such as milk and sugar, and then counted on customers to fill out their purchases with high profit items such as meat and produce.

The article concluded by quoting a syndicated columnist who offered this advice on grocery shopping, "If supermarket executives can't contend with a smarter shopper, they don't deserve to be in business."

I don't know what newspapers the writer and the columnist have been reading, but in most markets grocers are offering special prices on a very wide array of food items, ranging from the so-called low profit staples to the so-called high profit items.

I question the contention that there is any kind of battle plan on the part of store managers or customers.

But, if there should be any such adversary taken at work, it is certain that they are ill fated.

Any successful business is the result of the combination of reliable management and valued customers who know what to expect to find in "their stores." Advertising gets customers in the store initially, and keeps them coming by regularly by reassuring them through ads featuring competitive prices.

Burglary prevention measures suggested

With vacation season upon us again, the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service offers some good advice on protecting the unoccupied home against burglary.

When you are away on vacation you are an open target for burglars. Your best protection is a dependable house-sitter. If a house-sitter is unavailable, avoid advertising that your house is unoccupied.

Frances Fortenberry, housing specialist with the Extension Service, says there are six easy ways to make your house look occupied. The are:

—Cancel deliveries of newspapers and mail, or have a neighbor collect and hold all deliveries.

—Make arrangements for the lawn to be mowed regularly.

—Don't draw the curtains. That's a sure tip-off that the house is empty.

—Install automatic timers on lights in several parts of the house.

—Don't disconnect your telephone. —Notify police and neighbors in advance regarding your absence.

A burglar alarm system can startle thieves and warn others of a prowler. These systems range from inexpensive, battery-operated units that protect a single door or window to sophisticated systems that cover the entire house and alert the police or a private protection agency," she explains.

"Alarm system prices range from several hundred dollars to more than a thousand. The more sensitive and dependable an alarm system, the more it will cost," she adds.

Be sure to deal with a reputable firm in buying equipment, and be sure it has the seal of the Underwriters Laboratories. The system you purchase also should conform to local ordinances.

"Be a conscientious neighbor for others who may be away," Miss Fortenberry says. "If you hear or see a prowler on your own or a neighbor's property, notify the police."

If at all possible, avoid confrontation with intruders. The police are trained to capture. You aren't.

Alcoholism strikes millions in nation

There is no accurate count of the number of alcoholics in the United States. Estimates range from 10 to 12 million.

Although it is not known with certainty whether the incidence of alcoholism is increasing or decreasing, most indicators show that it is rising.

A pamphlet from the American Medical Association points out that an estimated 10 million people have a significant and recent alcohol-related problem and that another 10 million have experienced some type of alcohol-related problem during their lifetime.

Close to one million people are receiving help for alcoholism at the present time in the United States groups of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Alcoholism seems greater in large cities than in smaller towns and rural communities, but differences are not great.

Although alcoholism is more prevalent among men than women, an increasing number of studies show that because female alcoholics tend to be more shielded, the actual difference between the sexes may be much smaller than commonly believed. The number of known women alcoholics has doubled since World War II.

No one can doubt the serious medical, social and economic consequences of alcoholism. The cost of the nation has been estimated to be $25 billion a year due to absenteeism, health and welfare services, property damage and medical expenses.

Alcohol is a factor in about half of the automobile crashes in which there was a death, and is a serious factor among adult pedestrians who are killed.

Major industrial firms have established that the alcoholic employee is absent from work more days per year than the nonalcoholic, and can expect to die sooner.

Alcoholics can be treated, but their illness is on-going or chronic.

Total abstinence is a desirable aim. Improvements in social or occupational adjustments may be guides in determining whether a treatment effort is succeeding.

The primary goal of treatment is to help the alcoholic discover more effective ways than drinking to deal with the stresses of living.

Fresh makeup can't hide wrinkles of 70-year-old Courthouse

By Jim Pfeiffer

(Special to The Sea Coast Echo)

The Hancock County courthouse, standing like a shabby dowager from another era among modern surroundings, will celebrate her 70th birthday in September.

A fresh coat of paint this summer brightened exterior, but like a dowdy old lady wearing heavy makeup, she is beginning to show her age beneath the cosmetics.

Paint and plaster shower down from her cracked interior walls, rain and wind whistle through her out-of-plumb and broken windows.

Additionally, she contains space for only about two more years' accumulation of the steadily-increasing load of records straining her seams.

Nevertheless, she already has outlived three of her predecessors by many years. Severely battered by Camille in 1969, she recovered from a pounding that would have proved fatal to a less valiant lady.

Today, the loss of her cupola is the only readily discernible sign of the damage inflicted by the storm.

Although Bay St. Louis now is the county seat over which she rules, for the first 41 years the hub of government was elsewhere.

Hancock County was founded in 1812. Five years later, in 1817, the first courthouse was built at Center, which later became Caesar.

The county government remained there for years—until the courthouse and county seat were moved to Gainesville in 1837.

Gainesville no longer exists, having fallen prey to progress when NASA acquired land for the Mississippi Test Facility. But due to its proximity to water transportation, offered by the Pearl River, it was at that time a thriving community.

The county seat remained at Gainesville for more than 35 years. In 1853, the Gainesville courthouse burned, destroying most of the county's first 40 years of accumulated history.

Following the fire, the county seat was moved to Shieldsborough, by then beginning to show the effects of expanding settlement of the coastal area.

By 1866, enough new county records had accumulated to require building another courthouse. This wooden structure, surrounded by a picket fence, stood on the same approximate location as the present building.

It served for about 45 years, during which period Shieldsborough was renamed "Bay St. Louis" in honor of the bay upon whose banks it stood.

During these intervening years, Hancock County continued to grow. The 45-year-old building became no longer adequate.

In 1910, H.S. Weston was president of the board of supervisors, and S.J. Craft, J.E. Smith, J.J. McArthur and J.S. Bourgeois were associate members. A.J. Carver was sheriff, and F.H. Hoffman clerk. They set the wheels in motion for a new courthouse.

In July, plans submitted by Keenan Weiss, New Orleans architects, were approved for building a new courthouse "not to exceed the sum of $25,000."

The board advertised in the "Gulf Coast Progress" by construction bids.

Jett, Ala., Contracting Co. of Alabama won the construction contract with a bid of $24,989, which included granite steps at $650. Perhaps abashed by this latter extravagance, the board eliminated the fire escapes called for in the plans, at a saving of $60.

Napoleon Caron was hired to move the old courthouse out of the way so construction could begin. His fee, to move the building and the clerk's vault 70 feet to the east side of the grounds was $650.

His agreement called for "retaining the same relationship between the various offices," keeping all doors and windows "in such a condition that they readily may be opened and closed," and making sure the building still was fully functional at its new location.

John Henry was hired as construction superintendent at two percent of the cost. The contract with Jett Brothers was signed August 1, 1910, with contract time 8 months. Actual starting date is uncertain, but first payment under the contract, $3,120 made October 4, indicates construction probably began September 1.

Although the courthouse was built from the general county fund without a special tax levy, the supervisors on December 6, 1910, were forced to borrow $10,000 from the Hancock County Bank. They issued five warrants of $2,000 each, payable one each year for five years.

The new courthouse was formally accepted by the board September 20, 1911, a year and a month after the original contract was signed.

John Henry was employed to move the safe and furnishings from the old building into the new. Jett Brothers was paid $50 for placing a marble cornerstone, containing the names of county officials, and Alonzo B. Hayden provided sundry articles for the toilet rooms for $28.

Napoleon Caron bought the old courthouse at auction for $150, with the stipulation that he pay for any damage inflicted on the new building while demolishing the old one. The pickets and posts from the fence around the courthouse grounds were sold to J.E. Saucier for $5.

To complete the transition, the following were purchased for the court and jury rooms:

Three dozen chairs, two dozen sheets, a dozen each of single beds, mattresses, pillows and blankets—and four dozen spittoons.

appeared several months ago. The pictures show chandeliers hanging from the ceiling, an altar and organ are also visible. Now they are gone. Inside the church there are two rows of wooden benches and a podium has replaced the altar. Church members say the church was the most beautiful one in the community. The members say the floor, now wooden, was once carpeted. The carpet has been pulled up too. The United Methodist Church, which claims ownership of the property, has requested the Gospel church to move out. Church members fear money invested in the church improvements will be tied up in a court battle. For that reason they have stripped the church's interior although services continue. An original deed and lease agreements explaining Gospel Church's problem are included with the pictures on the roadside table. The deed, dated 1953, shows the property was originally donated by Grace A. Ortle to the Lakeshore United Methodist Church, in the care of the church's board of trustees. That deed states the property should revert back to the original owners if property is not used for a church. Lenore O'Farrell, a member of United Methodist Church's board of trustees, in 1975, agreed to rent the church to the Gospel Church for the next 20 years at $1 a month. The Gospel church members say they leased the building four years before that date in 1974 from the Methodist Church at $1 a month. They say they paid the $240 bill for leasing the property the additional twenty years, but the money was returned by the Methodist Church. A request by the Methodist Church that the property be vacated in two months is included on the table. That document is signed by the Lakeshore United Methodist Church's board of trustees. The Gospel members say the United Methodist Church has no right to ask them to leave. They claim the lease signed by O'Farrell is valid and gives them every right to remain in the church. They also claim they kept a church on the property when the Methodist Church failed to do so. In their opinion they saved the property from reverting back to the original owners. Thirdly, they claim to have spent $20,000 on improvements to the church since the time they leased it four years ago. Russell Kintzley, a member of the Lakeshore United Methodist Church, does not agree. "The board of trustees never agreed to rent the church for twenty years," he said. He stated the United Methodist Mississippi Conference, of which the Lakeshore Church is a member, also never agreed to the lease either. Kintzley said O'Farrell was acting on her own and never had the authority to lease the land without approval of the board. He said the board did agree to rent the church at $1 a month some five years ago. "That lease ran out in February of this year. We never agreed to a 20 year lease," he said. "The church has the deed to the property and has always had the deed. Stated flatly, they no longer have a lease and we want the church back." Kintzley said the Lakeshore area is growing and the Methodist Church is now interested in reopening the Lakeshore church. He said the Lakeshore United Methodist Church was originally established after the property was deeded to the church by Ortle. He said the pastor for the church traveled from Poplarville every Sunday to preach at the Lakeshore, Pearllington and Clermont Harbor United Methodist Churches. Kintzley said the Methodist Conference decided to abandon the Lakeshore church because the route was too extensive for the pastor. He could not give a date when that happened. However, he said the members of the Lakeshore Methodist Church began attending either the Clermont Harbor or Waveland church. He added he did not believe abandoning the church would have caused the church to return to the original owners. Jesus is the answer, Full Gospel Church feel they have been treated unfairly. Members say the church was not a church when they first leased the property. One woman said the interior was covered with mud left from Hurricane Camille. The group said they cleaned the entire church. Put stucco on the inside walls, whitewashed the walls, carpeted the floors, closed off an open portion of the church and turned it into a room. In addition they bought chandeliers. Bordelon said a hand crafted altar was built and also a large organ was purchased. The group said they also cleared brush from the surrounding land and bought property adjoining the land owned by the church. One woman exclaimed, "They came by and watched us and waited until we had completed the work before wanting the church back," she said. Who exactly "they" are, is not clear. Members, when referring to "they," are not necessarily referring entirely to the Methodist Church. One mother asked her child who they were fighting. "We are fighting the devil," he said. She nodded her head yes in approval. "That's right, we are fighting the devil." Bordelon said she did not believe that the trustees of the Methodist church were actually members of a church. She feels those people are just some of a number of people who are trying to have the church taken away. "They are jealous because they don't have as many miracles as we do," she said. Bordelon said she has also been accused "many times" in the last four years of being a witch, and some individuals in the community have threatened to blow up her and the church. "They have threatened to burn me and kill me and chop up my bones," she stated. She would not reveal the names of the people who threatened her but said she has filed a complaint against them. "The funny thing is, I am not the one who performs miracles. I can't cure anything. It's Jesus who does that, not me." "They are jealous that Jesus performs miracles here," she said. Members of the church agree that many miracles have been performed at the church. One woman said she was born deaf in both ears and blind in one eye. She said the church prayed for her and she was cured in four days. "Jesus turned the bones in my ears around," she said. "That was what was wrong with them." Sharon Keeler, church member, told her sons Hollis and Dennis to open their mouths to show the fillings in their teeth. Each had small fillings in several teeth. "They never went to a dentist," she said. "Jesus did that. The fillings just appeared." Other church members stated the excitement they felt when as they watched the fillings grow in the youth's mouths. "It was a miracle," one said. Another added, "It was incredible." Almost everyone picketing related a miracle which had happened to them. Other members told how the church had helped them. One woman said, "I don't know how many times the church has helped me with the electric bill." Bordelon said the church helps cloth needy church members and has bought groceries many times along with helping church members pay utility bills. "We are all very close," one woman said. "We don't fight. We love each other."

priority after arriving here will be to further investigate positive survey responses. "We will also begin a survey by boat of the Shoreline Park, lower Jordan River and Bayou Portage areas, but our number one priority is following up on the questionnaires," he explained. Lewis noted that residents should request members of the survey team to present a University of Illinois identification card. "Student identification cards contain a portrait photograph, but faculty cards do not," he said. "If a person says they are members of our survey team, but do not present proper identification, the police should be called immediately," Lewis suggested. The survey leader added that his team will be in the area until the end of July.

Knights' notes

Our sincere thanks and appreciation to Father William J. Voller, pastor of St. Clare's Catholic Church, Waveland for permitting the Knights of Columbus to share in the Mass and Communion Sunday, May 10.

We sincerely hope that event will be the forerunner of frequent Masses and Communion for the Knights of Columbus at St. Clare.

Authority has been obtained to establish a Circle of Columbian Squires, as an adjunct to the Knights of Columbus, Council 1522.

Columbian Squires is the Knights of Columbus youth organization for young men ages 13-18 years.

Brother Ed Frioux of Council 1522 will be counselor for the Squires.

We invite all Catholic young men, particularly the sons of Knights or their relatives, to become members.

The first meeting date will be announced soon.

Each year the months of May and June are most important months for the Knights of Columbus.

June 30 marks the end of the 1980 business year and the beginning of the 1981 year, since we operate on a fiscal year basis.

There is the push to close out last year's activities and elect new officers who must then make plans for the activities of 1981.

Every Knight should make a concerted effort to attend all of the meetings during this period, and make his contribution to the plans for the coming year.

Plans are being feverishly formulated to arrange a First, Second and Third Degree initiation ceremony within the next few weeks.

This ceremony usually takes place on a Sunday and is an all day activity.

A great deal of effort, planning, and expense is involved in preparing such a ceremony and the essential ingredient is the availability of the candidates.

Pending the announcement of the date for this activity we ask that all Knights who are candidates for the First, Second or Third Degree to keep open their Sundays for the next few weeks, until the date is set, and the details resolved.

Thursday, May 14, 8 p.m. at the K of C Hall, the Ladies Auxiliary of Pere Le Duc Council No. 1522 will hold its first re-activation meeting. Ladies, we are looking forward to having you join us. Welcome!

St. Ann's Altar Society will sponsor a pre-fair luncheon-social at noon in the parish hall, Wednesday, May 27. Donation $2. The public is invited.

Necaise, Kiln horses win two at Oak Downs

(SPECIAL TO THE SEA COAST ECHO) PEARL RIVER—The 3-furlong fourth race Sunday at Oak Downs figured to be close between Ethenol Jr. and Damned If I Know. But the actual finish was much closer than many had expected.

With a strong, come-from-behind kick, Ethenol Jr., owned by Laura Rester of Pearl River County, Miss., nipped Damned If I Know, owned by Cedric Ladner of Necaise Crossing in Hancock County, Miss., by the proverbial whisker.

The winner, ridden by Marty Comfort of the Kiln in Hancock County, was clocked in :38.265 seconds, while the second-place horse was timed in :38.27.

Sweet Faye was third and Miss Stylish fourth, and proved no challenge to the front-runners.

In a similar finish, Budweiser, owned by Pearl River's Randy Crowe, caught The Pay's Perfect at the finish line in the 3-furlong seventh to win by a head. Ray Robbins, who won four races on the 12-race card, was in the irons aboard Budweiser.

In the 350-yard ninth, Two Bar Jr., owned and trained by Ricky Slaydon of Slidell, posted an upset against Pooh, owned and trained by Herb Stelley, and Alvin Smith's Quite A Man.

Slaydon had purchased the horse only a few hours before the race. Picayune's Leo Fricke, who rode three winners Sunday, was aboard Two Bar Jr., who posted a top Class AA time of :18.58.

Little Man, a pony owned by Larry Turner of Lucedale, Miss., won one and lost one.

Little Calvin, owned and trained by Jimmy Rushing of Pearl River, won the 400-yard third race by overhauling Little Man in the last few jumps.

Riding the quarterhorse to victory was 16-year-old Curtis (Shorty) Ambrose, who recently moved to Pearl River from West Virginia, and started a riding career under the guidance of successful thoroughbred and quarterhorse trainer Red Crowe of Pearl River.

The final two races of the afternoon provided some of the most interesting matchups.

In the 250-yard 12th, Boss Injun, owned and trained by Richard Graham of Harrison County, won by one-half length over Rocky Hill Bailey, owned and trained by James Watson of Waveland, Miss.

Two Hancock County horses won Sunday.

Miss Riddle Star, owned by Terry Peterson of Necaise Crossing, won the 350-yard fifth against Scoot. And Two Times Chickadoo, owned and trained by Frank Comfort of The Kiln, and ridden by Marty Comfort, won the 350-yard sixth against Mo Joe Bailey.

Sunday's Results

1) 5 furlongs, Gray Ghost, :1:08.13, Bill Harris, owner and trainer; Suzanne Alexander, jockey. Slightly Varnished, :1:08.24.

Coast Junior College tuition increased $25

In a 13-4 vote Gulf Coast Junior College board of trustees approved a tuition increase of $25 a semester for full-time students and a $9 per credit hour increase for those attending part-time.

The hike is effective for the fall semester.

GCJC President J. J. Hayden Jr. said the decision will raise the cost from $175 to $200 a semester for full-time students, and from $21 to $30 for those part-time.

He said a current $488,000 deficit the college is facing prompted the administration to make the request.

The president added that the increase, the second one in a year, would provide an income of approximately $505,000. The total would cover the deficit, with $17,000 remaining.

In comparison to other state junior colleges, Hayden said Gulf Coast is right in line.

"This is the third increase that we've made in the last 11 years. Unfortunately we had one last year," he said.

During the board meeting, Hayden requested the original wording of the tuition increase be restated for part-time students. The final recommendation reads that this tuition is "not to exceed $9 per credit hour."

The exact amount will be determined later in the year when the administration has an up-dated enrollment report "and a better estimate of the college's financial situation,"

Hayden explained.

Gwynir Naderhoff, executive assistant for administration and finance, said the college considered other sources for money. He added that the legislature's appropriations will not cover all of the school's need and that county support "is at maximum."

Gulf Coast had "no alternative, but to raise student tuition," Naderhoff explained. "Certainly the junior college philosophy is to hold tuition down as much as possible. There still will be much belt-tightening in this college."

In other board actions an increase was approved in meal charges for students at the Perkinson Campus. A five-day meal ticket was raised from $63 to $78 a month and from $81 to $102 a month for a seven-day ticket.

Student housing increased by $10 a semester, effective, July 1. Hayden explained that is a flat increase with hikes differing according to the type of dormitory, size and facilities.

The trustees also voted for a 20 percent increase in rent and utilities in college housing for all personnel except for those living in and supervising dormitories.

Awards were given for achievement in the academic, vocational and technical areas.

Audie Murphy of Bay St. Louis received the Wayne Scarborough Memorial Award from the Early Bird Lions Club of Gulfport. The annual award, named after a GCJC graduate from the Jefferson Davis Campus who was killed during duty, is given to an outstanding law enforcement graduate.

Other award winners include Jan Gex, Pass Christian, fashion merchandising; Clark Shull, Pass Christian, journalism; Michael Waldon, Pass

Christian, nursing; Roger Ervin, Pass Christian, physical education; Jayne Schroeder, Pass Christian, practical nursing; and Joseph Kingston, Bay St. Louis, welding.

USM Grant to fund sleep study

The National Institute of Health has awarded the University of Southern Mississippi Department of Psychology a grant of $130,000 to study the control of breathing during sleep.

USM's Dr. John Harsh will direct the two-year study in conjunction with Dr. Pietro Badia at Bowling Green University in Ohio.

The study will determine if respiration during sleep can be controlled by behavioral techniques.

The first point to be studied will be whether the control of respiration learned while awake with the aid of reinforcement procedures can be transferred to the sleeping state.

The second phase of the research will determine if subjects can learn to change their pattern of breathing while asleep.

"The research," said Harsh, "will lay a foundation of knowledge regarding learning and performance of learned responses during sleep."

EXOTIC LANGUAGES

Two languages not regularly taught will be offered during the summer semester at the University of Southern Mississippi: Hebrew, schedules for 8 a.m. on Tuesday and Thursday mornings and Swahili on Tuesday evenings.

Dr. Roger Johnson Jr., instructor for Swahili, said, "We have offered this course twice before and generated a good deal of interest both times."

Swahili is one of the Bantu languages of Africa, with many loan words from Arabic. Swahili is the governmental language of Tanzania and is used widely in Kenya, Uganda, Zanzibar, Rwanda, Burundi, and Zaire.

It is important as a language of commerce. "It does, however, have a well developed literature, which we'll be looking at," Johnson said.

"What I enjoy most about Swahili is its radical difference from the European languages. As the students and I begin to communicate in Swahili, we find ourselves forced into new patterns of thought. Learning some Swahili gives perspective on our own language that is not available in the study of languages so closely related to English."

Hebrew will be taught by Rabbi Samuel A. Rothberg, MAHL. The aim of the course is to familiarize students with the basic structure of Hebrew, while they gain ability in writing and reading. The course is the first offering of Hebrew at the University.

"We shall pay some attention to the spoken language, particularly because learning to speak and understand facilitates more general learning. By the end of the semester, I anticipate that we shall be able to read selected narrative passages from the Bible," said Rabbi Rothberg.

Both Hebrew and Swahili are listed as "Introduction to Exotic Languages."

Dr. Editha S. Newmann, Chairman of the Department of Foreign Languages at USM reminds those interested in either class that the courses differ fundamentally from the normal curriculum in the department.

The exotic language courses aim to show people how the language works. Students gain an overview of the linguistic and cultural elements necessary to make the language meaningful and, sufficient basic skills to make it accessible.

Exotic language courses are meant to be complete in themselves. "Of course we do not seek to give students 'mastery' of the language in one term," she said, "but we can provide the tools for understanding and a methodology for continued self-teaching."

Other languages that have been taught under the designation of exotic languages are Sanskrit, Mandarin, Ancient Egyptian (hieroglyphs); Old Norse, Portuguese, and Arabic.

For additional information contact the department at 266-7191.

Wagner completes PRC plans

Pearl River College officials are only formalities away from beginning a $750,000 building and renovation program on the Poplarville campus, according to Greg Mitchell, chairman of the Pearl River Board of Trustees.

Mitchell said architect Fred Wagner of Bay St. Louis has finished the plans and the next step is for the Mississippi State Building Commission to approve and give the go-ahead for the campus project.

According to Mitchell the renovation and addition to the PRC Cafeteria and student center and Shivers' gymnasium will then be put out on bids, with actual construction work beginning around August 1.

"We are striving to meet the needs of our supporting district," said Mitchell, a businessman from the Poycune area. "As long as we can possibly acquire the funds we will continue to add renovation and construct the best facilities possible."

Renovations to the cafeteria will include the addition of 150 seats which would place the total seating capacity at 490. Two separate serving lines will be added with separate entrances to each. The present faculty dining area will give way to the new main entrance and restroom facilities. A new entrance is also planned for the residents of Crosby Hall, located above the cafeteria.

The student center will receive major renovations as the front porch will be enclosed and a new porch extending out from the old one will be built. The lobby will contain a conference room and a student council office.

The present game room will be converted into the new residence of the bookstore, complete with two check-out counters. The present site of the bookstore will house the fast food service and the main dining room will be complete with vending machines.

No renovations are planned for the post office, but a new nursing station will be added onto the side of the post office. The facility will contain a waiting room, office and examination room.

The game room in the present student center will be transferred to Shivers Gym, with lockers for intramural sports participants housed on each side. The right side of the gym, where the old bleachers were, will be the site of a two-story deck containing music rooms, card rooms and television rooms. All rooms in the gym will be air-conditioned.

"We have so much to offer here at PRC," Mitchell said, "we not only offer a quality academic and vocational-technical education, but we can do this at such an economical cost."

Mitchell is serving his second term as elected chairman of the Pearl River College governing body. Board members represent Pearl River, Hancock, Lamar, Marion, Forrest and Jefferson Davis counties.

Stanford takes nine PR awards

Larry L. Stanford, director of public relations for Pearl River College, won nine awards, including eight first places, at the annual awards conference of the College Public Relations Association of Mississippi (CPRAM) here last week.

Stanford was also elected vice-president of CPRAM which includes public relation and public information staffs from 33 Mississippi universities, junior colleges, and state agencies.

Fourteen junior colleges, which included 24 PR professionals were eligible to compete in the junior division. Stanford has now won 38 CPRAM awards during the past five years, including 15 first places, 13 seconds, eight thirds and two honorable mentions.

The PRC PR director won first place certificates for artwork, short range multimedia campaign, overall brochure, special edition spread, feature writing, radio presentation, paid advertisement, and color photography. This is the fifth consecutive year he has won the first place ranking in photography.

Stanford's second place award was for a football program entry in the special events category.

The judging team was headed by David McHam, chairman of the Division of Journalism at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas.

At Pearl River, Stanford is director of public relations, sports information, printing, and he also advises the student newspaper and college annual, and teaches journalism and photography. He is also a cheerleader sponsor, campus postmaster, voice of the PRC Wildcats and Lady Wildcats and coach of the Lady Wildcat intercollegiate softball team.

The PRC public relations department includes Stanford, Margaret Boone, typographer and printer; Kathy Pagani, secretary; and student PRC staff members Cliff Crandall, Peggy Creel, Bob Wright, Joey Howard, and photographer Ed Fore.

Stanford has one son Larry Shane of Hattiesburg. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stanford of Poplarville.

Shiyou among Perk graduates

Special honor graduates at Gulf Coast Junior College include Lori Shiyou of Pass Christian.

Students graduating Friday night from the Perkinston Campus were challenged to commit themselves to their future choices and understand "that things are not always as they seem."

The speaker, social studies instructor Robert Rominger, added that "it is within this process of distinguishing between reality and appearances; that education performs its most vital function."

He noted that on the college campus the higher education environment allows for experiences that prepare the student to "unscramble the uncertain mixture of reality and appearance. Consequently, we not only learn better how to live with and relate to others, but we recognize more clearly those alternatives open to us."

Student speaker Ricky Churchwell of Lucedale advised his classmates "to limit ourselves to purposes that attract us and are consistent with our abilities and our rules of conduct."

The president of Phi Beta Lambda told the graduating class to remember the word faith when making future decisions. "We have everything we need in this world, 'faith', freedom, ability, individuality, tolerance and honor."

Others participating in the ceremonies in A. L. May Memorial Stadium included GJC President J. J. Hayden Jr. who conferred associate degrees and certificates. Dr. Clyde E. Strickland, Perkinston Campus executive dean, presented class members.

The invocation and benediction were delivered by Regina Lee of Gulfport.

WE GLADLY

BERRY, BERRY GOOD.

And we guarantee it.

When you choose produce, demand the very best. Sometimes a cheaper price means cheaper quality—undersize avocados, limp heads of lettuce, smaller grapes that are less plump, sweet and juicy. And that's no bargain.

But the quality is never cheap at Jitney. It's always up to our high standards...and yours. "The highest possible quality at the lowest possible price." That's how we define excellent value in fresh produce.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine if there were differences in the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders between two groups of nurses working in different units of a tertiary care hospital. The prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was determined by means of a self-administered questionnaire among 100 nurses from each unit. The prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was significantly higher in the intensive care unit than in the medical-surgical unit ($p < .001$). The prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was also significantly higher in nurses who had worked longer than 10 years compared to those who had worked less than 10 years ($p < .001$). The prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was also significantly higher in nurses who had worked longer than 10 years compared to those who had worked less than 10 years ($p < .001$).
